

Later this month in San Antonio the FCC will be holding a hearing regarding localism in broadcasting. As a music promotion person this issue is near and dear to me. I strongly believe that local bands should have an opportunity to showcase their talents to the community that is why I am so pleased with opportunity(ies) San Antonio's local Clear Channel radio have given not only my artist but other Texas and San Antonio artists.

Clear Channel radio (KAJA) has been great in communicating with me about my artist. I also feel their desire to help when I bring them the quality material that deserves recognition. The last thing we need is radio stations playing terrible local music just because they are local.

Without Clear Channel's help our music may never have been heard. It is this type of commitment that keeps local music vibrant and accessible -- Thank you Clear Channel.
